

Rustic

Artistry for the Home

Written and photographed by

Ralph Kylloe

Furniture entrepreneur

Thomas Molesworth invented a classic style in the 1930s with his leather-and-weavings pieces. The Molesworth furniture, along with the Native American artifacts, paintings and hickory furniture, are all of the period.

Leather furnishings, original antique paintings, a warmly inviting fireplace, and a telescope to watch the wildlife in the lower pasture—all the makings of a classic Rocky Mountain interior.

Made from twisted juniper, these comfortable chairs by rustic artist Lester Santos are covered with leather. A collection of antique Adirondack pack baskets, snowshoes and canoe paddles complete the setting.

A table created from locally cut branches and a thick barn-board top becomes a focal point of the room.

